(This report also applies to the same bug that appears in the Sanity-Functionality test)

Title:

Moving from “Signing in with Google” to the next screen requires 2 taps instead of one

Description:

After tapping on “Continue as Michal” there is a message “signing you in” and after a few seconds the next screen should appear but instead, we see the “Continue as Michal” screen.

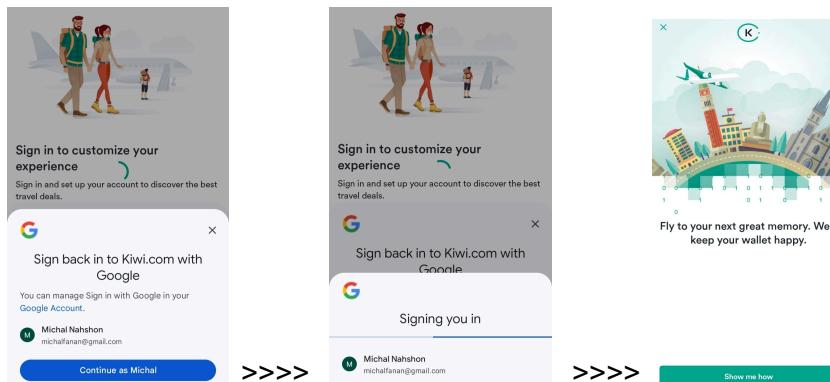

Tapping on “Continue as Michal” for the second time, will bring up the next screen

Bug recovery steps (user with a profile):

1. Tap on the Kiwi app on your mobile device (Data notice will appear)
2. Tap on 'Accept' (“Continue as Michal” screen will appear)
3. Tap on “Continue as Michal”

Expected result: A message will show: “Signing you in”

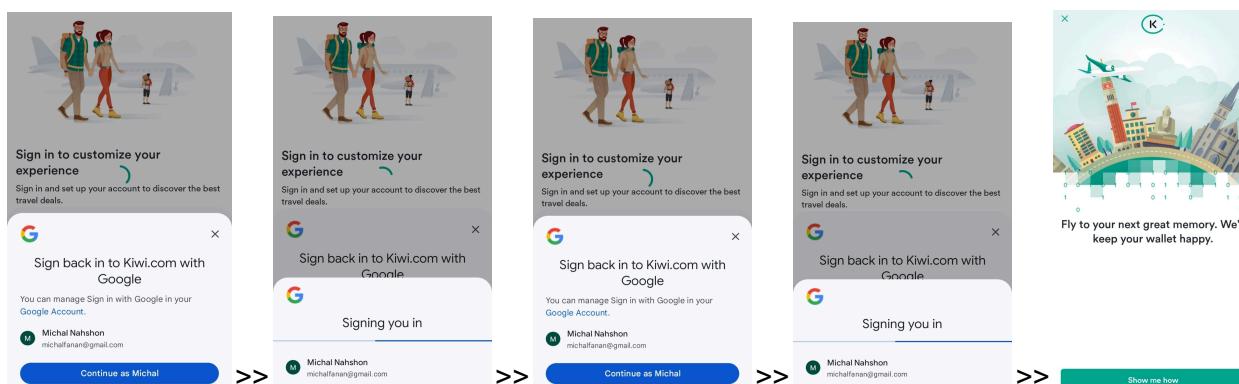

After a few seconds, the next screen will appear: “Fly to your next great memory”

Actual result:

A message showed: “Signing you in”

After a few seconds, the same screen appeared: “Continue as Michal”

Severity: Low. There are no significant effects except for the minor inconvenience of an extra tapping and another second of waiting.

Priority: Low. As the severity and effect are low, there is no need for an immediate fix.

Bug report:

This bug occurred in Galaxy A30 (also tested but did not occur in Galaxy S20)

Title:

The changing text in the main screen does not appear properly

Description:

In the top part of the screen, there is a text changing from: "We hack the system" to: "You fly for less". The sentence "You fly for less" appears cut.

Bug recovery steps (user with a profile):

Open the main screen in the Kiwi app

Expected result:

On the top part of the screen, a text will show: "We hack the system", then the text will change to: "You fly for less"

Severity: Low. The visual flaw should be fixed but the severity is low as it does not affect the app's functionality or usability.

Priority: Low. As the severity and effect are low, there is no need for an immediate fix.
